This architectural floor plan illustrates the interior of the Sydney Opera House. The central feature is the semi-circular auditorium, which is filled with tiered seating. The stage area is located at the top of the plan, featuring a large, rectangular stage and a smaller, curved stage area. The stage is flanked by two large, curved wings. The roof structure is visible at the top, showing the iconic white, shell-like design. The plan also includes various walkways, corridors, and service areas, providing a comprehensive view of the building's internal layout.
